7. The words ‘pair’ and ‘dozen’ can be used both as singular and plural depending on the number of pairs or dozens.

Example: I have a pair of socks.

I have two pairs of socks.

He bought two dozen of oranges.

He bought dozens of oranges.

8. Some nouns are both countable and uncountable depending on their meaning in a sentence.

Example: I don’t have much time. (Uncountable)

I have told you many times not to disturb me. (Countable)

Noun : Case

Nouns function in various ways in sentences.

1. Nouns are subjects. Every sentence has a subject, which is a noun that tells us what that sentence is all about.

Examples: 1. John swung the baseball bat. 2. Harry wrote a letter.

2. Nouns are direct objects. These nouns receive action from verbs.

Examples: 1. John swung the baseball bat. 2. Harry wrote a letter.

3. Nouns are indirect objects. These nouns receive the direct object.

Examples: 1. Brad threw John the ball. 2. My father bought my sister a bicycle.

4. Nouns are objects of prepositions. These nouns follow the prepositions in prepositional phrases.

Examples: 1. John swung the baseball bat at Greg. 2. Rehan kept his books on the shelf.

5. Nouns are subject complements. These nouns follow linking verbs and rename the subject.

Examples: 1. John is a baseball player. 2. Radhika is a singer.

6. Nouns are object complements. These nouns complete the direct object.

Examples: 1. They named their dog Max. 2. The coach appointed Rohan captain.

7. Nouns are nominative of address. These nouns are used to address a person, animal or thing.

Examples: 1. Friends, follow me. 2. Mohan, come here. 3. Sit down, boys.

8. Nouns are used in apposition. These nouns follow another noun to denote the same person or thing.

Examples: 1. Rohan, my brother, is a cricketer. 2. Mr. Sharma, our neighbour, is a gentleman.

Exercise: Underline all the Nouns in the following sentences and state their function.

1. The hunter killed the bird.
2. The children are playing cricket.
3. My friend has become a doctor.
4. Rama, please pass the salt.
5. The teachers asked the students many questions.

7. My friend has returned from London.
8. My teacher, Mrs. James, is a wonderful lady.
9. My uncle gifted me a watch on my birthday.
10. The parents named their child Vishnu.

Noun : Possessive Case

The possessive case of a noun is formed using the sign of apostrophe ('). Apostrophe is used to form the possessive case of noun to show a sense of belonging or ownership or some relationship between a noun and another noun.

Examples: Mohan's book (The book belongs to Mohan.)

Horse's tail (The tail belongs to horse.)

Student's application (The application belongs to student.)

Correct Use of Apostrophe (')

1. When the noun is singular, the possessive case is formed by adding -'s to the noun.

Examples: Punit's book, the boy's pen

2. When the noun is plural and ends with 's', the possessive case is formed by adding only an apostrophe.

Examples: girls' hostel, boys' school

3. When the noun is plural, but does not end with 's', the possessive case is formed by adding -'s.

Examples: children's day, men's store

4. If there are too many hissing sounds in a word, the letter 's' is omitted after the apostrophe.

Examples: for conscience' sake, for goodness' sake, Moses' law

5. When a noun or a title consists of many words, the possessive case is formed by adding -'s to the last word.

Example: the queen of England's palace

6. When two nouns are in apposition, -'s is added only to the latter.

Example: This is Raju, the painter's house.

7. When two nouns are closely linked, the possessive case is formed by adding -'s to the latter. This is known as joint possession.

Examples: Sohan and Mohan's book, Wren and Martin's Grammar

8. If two nouns are connected, and they show separate possession, the -'s will be used with both of them.

Example: Milton's and Browning's poems

9. Classical names ending with 's' usually take only apostrophe.

Examples: Pythagoras' theorem, Archimedes' law

10. The possessive is not used with inanimate/non-living objects.

Example: the table's leg (incorrect), leg of table (correct)
the house's roof (incorrect), the roof of the house (correct)

11. If an inanimate object is personified, the possessive case is formed by adding -'s.

Examples: India's heroes, nature's law, fortune's wheel

12. Possessive case is used with nouns indicating time, space, weight in idiomatic expressions.

Examples: a day's rest, a week's holiday, in a year's time, at a stone's throw, on wit's end, a hair's breadth etc.

13. In a compound noun, the possessive case is formed by adding -'s to the last part.

Examples: my mother-in-law's books, the editor-in-chief's car

14. When a proper noun or name takes -'s to denote an institution or organization, the nouns referring to these institutions and organizations are omitted.

Examples: I am going to St. Joseph's (St. Joseph's school)

15. Use of double possessive should be avoided.

Example: My father's friend's house (incorrect)
