Section-A Reading (20 Marks)

1. Read the poem given below carefully. (10)

Don't Quit

When things go wrong, as they sometimes will,
When the road you're trudging seems all uphill,
When funds are low and the debts are high,
And you want to smile but you have to sigh,
When care is pressing you down a bit,
Rest if you must, but don't you quit.

Life is queer with its twists and turns,
As every one of us sometimes learns,
And many a failure turns about,
When he might have won if he'd stuck it out.
Don't give up, though the pace seems slow
You may succeed with another blow.

Often the goal is nearer than
It seems to a faint and faltering man;
Often the struggler has given up
When he might have captured the victor's cup,
And he learned too late, when the night slipped down,
How close he was to the golden crown.

Success is failure turned inside out
The silver tint of the clouds of doubt,
And you never can tell how close you are
It may be near when it seems afar;
So stick to the fight when you're hardest hit
It's when things seem worst that you mustn't quit.

From Mount Abu we drove towards the home of the famous Mewari warrior and king, Maharana Pratap. This place is Haldighati where the Rana fought the final battle of his life with Raja Man Singh, the Mughal leader. The name Haldighati is believed to have originated from the turmeric-coloured yellow soil of the area.

A local teacher who belongs to the town of Haldighati has created a museum exclusively on the battle of Haldighati. Maharana Pratap was the only Rajput prince who did not accept the supremacy of Akbar. Akbar had occupied Maharana Pratap's hometown, Chittor. The Maharana spent his lifetime battling for his hometown while he himself remained a fugitive. This story and the final battle, which changed his life, are etched in pictures inside the museum. The museum has an entry and photography fee. There is a restaurant within its perimeter that serves a traditional Rajasthani meal of dal batti and churma. Local handicrafts like Rajasthani dolls and block print bed sheets are available inside the museum.

Some 500 metres away, as per local belief, is the tomb of Chetak, Rana Pratap's horse famed for his loyalty. It is also believed that this monument was built by the Maharana himself. Legend has it that when the Maharana got hurt in the battle of Haldighati, it was Chetak who carried him out of the battle. This valiant horse galloped away from the battlefield with the enemy in hot pursuit. Chetak did not hesitate to jump a twenty-two-feet-long channel filled with swirling waters to save his master. The enemy could not follow them, and this saved the life of Rana.

Sample Assessment Paper-2

Section-A Reading (20 Marks)

1. Read the poem given below carefully. (10)

Chimney Sweeper

When my mother died I was very young,
And my father sold me while yet my tongue
Could scarcely cry "weep! 'weep! 'weep! 'weep!"
So your chimneys I sweep and in soot I sleep.

There's little Tom Dacre, who cried when his head
That curled like a lamb's back, was shaved, so I said,
"Hush, Tom! never mind it, for when your head's bare,
You know that the soot cannot spoil your white hair."

And so he was quiet, and that very night,
As Tom was a-sleeping he had such a sight!
That thousands of sweepers, Dick, Joe, Ned, and Jack,
Were all of them locked up in coffins of black;

And by came an Angel, who had a bright key,
And he opened the coffins and set them all free;
Then down a green plain, leaping, laughing they run,
And wash in a river and shine in the Sun.

Then naked and white, all their bags left behind,
They rise upon clouds, and sport in the wind.
And the Angel told Tom, if he'd be a good boy,
He'd have God for his father and never want joy.

And so Tom awoke; and we rose in the dark
And got with our bags and our brushes to work
Though the morning was cold, Tom was happy and warm;
So if all do their duty, they need not fear harm.

2. Read the passage given below carefully and answer the questions that follow:

Ships are large vessels that float on water. These vehicles are different from boats in view of their sizes and passenger capacity. Ships are engaged for a variety of activities such as transporting people or goods, fishing and warfare.

Passenger ships include ferries which are used for short-sea trips, in moving passengers and vehicles. Ocean liners are typical passenger or passenger cargo vessels transporting only passengers. We can also see cruise ships at sea. These ships often transport passengers on round trips in which the trip and the attractions on the ship are a major draw.

Luxury cruise ships are used for pleasure voyages. They are almost like moving seven star hotels on the sea, offering professional hospitality. These ships have big restaurants, theatres, pools, gymnasiums, beauty parlours, saloons, and duty-free shops. Passenger ships or cruises have single or shared cabins, deluxe rooms, penthouses, rooms and dormitories.

Some ships carry cargo all over the world. The ships that carry bulk cargo are called cargo ships. Even these ships travel all over the world-east, west, north, and south. They carry food items such as wheat, rice, meat, and oranges. Some ships carry bulk liquids in the form of fuel or oil. These are also called oil tankers. Others also carry raw materials like coal and iron ore. Some ships carry industrial products such as cars, televisions, and computers. Cargo is stored in the inside of a ship called the 'holds'.

Ships on the ocean and sea also maintain the traffic rules like vehicles on land. They cannot travel everywhere in narrow straits and at the entrance to harbours. They are also designated sea routes for ships. Near the shore there are shallow places, and a big ship can run aground and damage its bottom or sides. Ships that enter port must do so only during designated times, that is, at high tide when there is a current which draws the water into the harbour.

In the Bazars of Hyderabad

What do you sell, O ye merchants?
Richly your wares are displayed.
Turbans of crimson and silver,
Tunics of purple brocade,
Mirrors with panels of amber,
Daggers with handles of jade.

What do you weigh, O ye vendors?
Saffron, lentil and rice
What do you grind, O ye maidens?
Sandalwood, henna and spice
What do you call, O ye peddlars?
Chessmen and ivory dice.

What do you make, O ye goldsmiths?
Wristlet and anklet and ring,
Bells for the feet of blue pigeons,
Frail as a dragon-fly's wing,
Girdles of gold for the dancers,
Scabbards of gold for the king.

What do you cry, O ye fruit men?
Citron, pomegranate and plum
What do you play, O ye musicians?
Sitar, Sarangi and drum.
What do you chant, O magicians?
Spells for the aeons to come.

What do you weave, O ye flower-girls?
With tassels of azure and red?
Crowns for the brow of a bridegroom,
Chaplets to garland his bed,
Sheets of white blossoms new-garnered
To perfume the sleep of the dead.

Dolls are among the oldest creations of man. Archaeologists have found small dolls of clay, wood, bone and ivory from graves and other areas excavated. In India, the earliest dolls, unearthed from the site of the Indus valley civilization, are as old as five thousand years. The earliest dolls were made from natural objects like sticks and stones. American Indians made a deity of wood, and used it while imparting religious instructions.

Dolls of cloth, wax and papier mache also became popular. Pottery dolls became common with the children of Victorian England. They had perfect, fragile porcelain heads and rich royal clothing; Children also had a 'Sunday doll', which was taken out of its glass case only on Sundays. The doll houses were elaborately set up with furniture, pictures, decoration pieces; window drapes-almost everything required in a luxurious home.

In Korea, a traditional doll was made out of a bamboo pipe, and long grass was used to form the 'hair'. This doll was not given any feature on the face, but some white powder was rubbed over a small area. Some of the earliest Russian dolls were made of pine cones and these were clothed with moss cloaks. Another Russian doll is the 'matryoshka' doll, also known as a Russian nesting doll of decreasing sizes placed one inside the other.

The Japanese used dolls for various purposes. A primitive Japanese doll was made of sticks and strings, covered with paper clothing. Some dolls were 'dressed' and 'fed' and 'treated' as though alive. The Japanese also have ceremonial dolls, not for playing but for simply exhibiting on a specific day. The boys exhibit their warrior dolls on March 3, and the girls' festival falls on May 5.

The use of dolls in religious ceremonies continues till date. Scenes of the birth of Jesus include figures of baby Jesus, Mother Mary, Joseph and the shepherds. These are called crib dolls and are not meant for playing. In northern India, the story of Krishna's birth is depicted through clay dolls. In Bihar, the entire story of the Shyama Chak festival is depicted through clay images.

Even today, craftsmen in Assam and West Bengal make dolls out of soft stems of a plant growing in marshy areas. West Bengal is known for terracotta toys, and Rajasthan markets dolls of unbaked clay. Artists of Uttar Pradesh are masters of making brightly painted wooden dolls. Over the years, the variety of materials and mechanisms used for making dolls has increased tremendously.

Autumn

Autumn is on the horizon I can tell
By the coloured leaves that fell
While all around the land was green,
The change in the season hardly seen.

Orchard trees are fruitless as well
Their outstretched boughs as if in a spell,
As the succulent leaves begin to pale

Autumn is on the horizon I can tell
Birds not singing on the porch rail
Sensing the coming of the autumn chill
Prepare to flock on the nearby hill

Autumn is on the horizon I can tell
Seeing woolly caterpillars on the boarded well,
Squirrels scurrying across the ground
Where hickory nuts now abound.

Autumn is coming soon, if one believes,
The land will be covered with a blanket of leaves
Flowers wilting beneath the hazy sky,
No longer attracting a beautiful butterfly.

The year was 1936. Jesse Owens was on his way to Berlin to make his dreams come true. The American athlete was going to participate in his first Olympic Games. Owens' journey to the American athletics team had been long and gruelling. He had grown up in poverty. In school and in college, Owens had trained in between attending classes and working jobs as a waiter, petrol bunk attendant and life operator. He had fee to pay and a family to support.

Germany, in 1936, was a dangerous place to live. It was under the control of the cruel and violent Nazi party. The Nazis believed that the Germans were superior to all others, physically and mentally. This was why the Olympics was an important event for them. It was where German athletes would prove the world that they were the best. and that the German people were the 'Master Race' - people meant to conquer the world and rule over all others.

As the Nazis' racist policies got worse by the day, Owens wondered whether it was right to go to Berlin. Would it be right to take part in a competition held by a country where millions were being persecuted? Many countries disapproved of the Nazis' attitude. They had all started debating whether or not to boycott the German Olympics. Because of this pressure, the Nazis reluctantly allowed Jews from other countries to participate. It was only then that 52 nations agreed to attend the Berlin Olympics.

When Owens arrived in Berlin, he was surprised by his welcome. He had expected hatred and insults from the crowd. But instead, he was greeted cheerfully by fans. Even Germans had heard of Jesse Owens and his record-breaking runs.

Owens' performance in the Berlin Olympics did not disappoint his fans. He won gold medals in the 100-metre and 200-metre race and the 1 x 400-metre relay. It was only during the long jump event that Owens had a spot of trouble. The rules for the long jump were different in Germany. Owens' first few attempts ended in disaster. But Lutz Long, a fellow long-jump competitor helped Owens and gave him some valuable advice; consequently, Owens won the gold medal whereas Long won the silver. Long was the first to congratulate Owens. To Owens, the friendship he struck up with Long was the most important trophy he brought away from the Berlin Olympics.
