

What is Diary Entry?

It is human nature to share one's personal experiences with near and dear ones. Many people keep a record of their day to day experiences in a diary. Diary entry is a very personal and informal way of writing. It is a means of keeping record of day to day events, happenings, activities, personal experiences, plans, hopes, opinions, fears, joys, sorrow, aims, targets, achievements, gains, loss, mistakes, apologies and many such human feelings.

Remember, it is not just enlisting what happened chronically. As it is a personal record, it is often fused with lots of emotions, personal expressions and opinions. It is the description of how the diary keeper feels about a particular incident that happens in his life or that he witnesses or experiences.

Although personal, the record may be about any theme such as friends, teachers, classmates, school teachers, neighbours, animals, social or political issues, or issues related to one's area, country or world. Some people treat their diary as their close friend and converse with it as if it were a human being. They even give a name to their diary.

Study the table given below to understand Diary Entry more vividly.

Style of Diary Entry	Personal, Informal, Colloquial
Difference between Diary and other forms of writing	Diary entry is a personal document, only to be read by the owner. Unlike other forms of writing, it is not published or meant to be commented on by the general public.
Length	The length of diary entry varies from a few lines to several pages. For examination purpose, there is always a word limit, generally 150 to 200 words.
Language	The language is mostly informal and communicative, written in First Person (I, me, my, we, us, our, myself, ourselves). It may be full of interjections or exclamatory sentences.
Tense employed	Simple Past: To describe the incident that happened in the past with past time reference Simple Present: To describe general statements or views regarding the incident Present Perfect: To denote actions recently happened Simple Future: To express future plans or determination
Salutation	Dear Diary/Dear.....(in case the writer has given his/her diary a name)

Dear Diary

It was the happiest day of my life. The result of final examination was declared, a moment I was eagerly waiting for since the day final examination ended.

I have stood first in the final examination and scored 99% marks. My joys knew no bounds when the result was declared. As soon as my name was announced as the topper of the class, all the students started shouting jubilantly. They all started congratulating me. I was on the seventh sky at that moment. My class teacher also congratulated me and patted my back. I also thanked her and all other teachers for teaching so well.

My parents, grandparents and siblings were all extremely happy to know about my glorious success in the final examination. They all were proud of me. I had burnt midnight oil for this day. My parents were congratulated by the Principal, my teachers, friends and neighbours. I went to temple to say 'Thanks' to God. We offered sweets at temple and distributed the same among our near and dear ones. I also thanked my mother who has always helped me in studies. In the evening my friends and I went to a restaurant to celebrate my grand success. I will always cherish the memories of this day. I hope I continue to achieve success in years to come as well.

Good night!

Sample-II On your way to school, you saw a car run over a little puppy. Write your diary entry expressing your feelings about the incident.

Dear Diary

I had a terrible experience today. It was a day of mixed emotions: anger, pity, satisfaction and what not.

Today afternoon while I was coming back from my school, I saw a speeding car run over a liittle, innocent puppy. I was shocked to see the plight of the puppy. The driver of the car seemed to be a man without heart as he did not even bother to stop his car and look at the bleeding puppy whose leg was badly wounded under his car. I was mad with fury and wanted to hit the driver hard, but at that time I thought it more important to take care of the injured puppy. I felt really pained to see how indifferent people have become to others' pains be it a human being or an innocent animal. No one bothered to take the puppy to a vet.

I took pity on the poor thing and rushed to a veterinarian. The doctor was a nice man who immediately cleaned the wounded leg and put bandage around it. He gave puppy an injection to reduce the pain. He did not even charge a single penny when I told him that the puppy was a stray dog. He also gave the puppy milk and biscuits. I was overwhelmed to see the kind treatment given by the vet. I brought the puppy home. My uniform was all blood stained, but I had a great sense of pride and satisfaction that I had saved the life of a poor puppy. The incident has set me thinking about providing a shelter to the poor stray animals.

See you later.
